> ABOUT

The yacht's exterior springs from the drawing boards of British design studio Claydon Reeves with naval architecture by Van Oossanen Naval Architects. Her interior design has been completed in-house by the yard and the owner's team.

The Mulder ThirtySix is built in aluminium and defined by a slender profile and continuous window line that culminates in a contemporary plumb bow. At the stern, the yacht features a glass bulwark with the yacht's name emblazoned across it – a signature detail of the Mulder ThirtySix line.

On the foredeck, Mulder has integrated a spread of sunpads and a small lounge area just forward of a skylight, which allows natural light to pour into the owner's suite below. Crowning the yacht is a generous sundeck with a bar overlooking the Jacuzzi and a shaded area complete with dining and seating.

The yacht's interior themes are warm and inviting, with a focus on elegant wood detailing and a refined colour palette throughout. In the main saloon, full-height windows flood the interior with light, while a cinched bulkhead provides separation between the lounge and a dining area. Amidships is a classically-styled bar finished with mottled glass and mirrored panelling, while the forward bulkhead adds some brightness with a Pop Art artwork.
